How do I sign up for a course?

```
Before enrolling in a course, you have to register on the platform;
Afterwards, you will have to follow the individual procedures, which can also be different from each other, to enroll in each course.
```

On the homepage of the platform, immediately below the welcome message (in Italian and English) the associations and structures with which the IES system, Ismo E-learning System, collaborates, are indicated as "Course Categories". At the top, next to the IES logo, it is also possible to establish a system language other than the default one (Italian).

Clicking on the desired course opens this dialog box.

At this point the user has two alternatives: if he already has a username and password, entering them in the appropriate spaces of the upper window he will be immediately directed to the chosen course (always if he has been enrolled in the course, see below). In this case is advisable to activate the "Remember username" check to simplify the subsequent times you access the platform.
If this is the first time you try to access the platform, you should move your attention to the lower part of the window, where you will find all the necessary instructions to create a general account for the platform. Clicking on "Create new account" in the following page you can see the window that opens to the user, who will have to enter all the elements indicated as mandatory, plus others (city and country of belonging) that will serve to get to know him better within the IES community.
